Services & Events

Centers work collaboratively with Student government, campus clubs, students with disabilities and international students.

Strengthen partnerships with social justice organizations to build coalitions and community.

The Centers strive to help students connect academic learning and life experiences to empowering action for social change.

The Centers host and highlight Women’s History Month events every March that focus on women's issues with special guest speakers and experts in their fields.

Conferences and Workshops are held year-round on various topics.

Referrals to off-campus organizations and agencies based on individual needs and life circumstances.

Supporting Academic Success
Fostering Community Engagement
Empowering Students
Leadership Development is central to the mission of the CUNY Women’s Centers. Programs promote the leadership of women in the areas of human rights, social justice, global education, and gender equality. Students are empowered through participation.

What We Do

Activism and Programming

The Women’s Centers work to increase awareness on topics like gender related violence, LGBTQ issues, and women’s health, by developing programs based on issues of importance to women students, faculty and staff, and the larger community. The Centers also collaborate with outside organizations and participate in activism on a community level.

Direct Services

All Women’s Centers provide support to students to improve retention and academic success. Women centers staff can provide students with referrals to on and off-campus counseling services and/or organizations in their neighborhoods that address individual needs and concerns.

Information

We can help if you’re looking for a clinic in your area or someone to assist you with a public assistance claim. If you are looking for more information on intimate partner violence, eating disorders, or some other issue, the Women’s Centers have individual collections of books, journals, brochures and pamphlets that are available to students, faculty, and staff.
